CHANGE OF HEART

The late Baron de Rothschild once had a valet named Alphonse, an excellent servant whose only fault (in the baron's eyes) was his following after socialism. The man was a sedate, harmless fellow, however, whose demonstration against his master's capitalism amounted to nothing more than a weekly attendance at a meeting of socialists, so the baron raised no objection to his political faith.

One week Alphonse failed to attend the meeting. The baron thought he might have forgotten the night, but when the next week Alphonse again absented himself from the meeting de Rothschild asked for an explanation.

"Sir," replied the valet, regarding his master very soberly, "some of the party members with whom I was mistakenly associated have worked out a calculation that if all the wealth in France were divided equally per capita, each individual would be the possessor of 2,000 francs."

"Well," exclaimed the baron, "what of it?"

"Just this, sir," replied the enlightened Alphonse, "I have $5,000 francs now."—Collier County News.

HISTORY REPEATS

A man in New York recently received a letter from a friend who drives an ambulance in the Middle East. The letter was written from Lebanon, which, said the correspondent, looks rather sad these days because the Biblical cedars of Lebanon are gone—cut down by modern man for his crass industrial and military purposes.

At this point the censor, a well-informed man, had added a little little historical note: "Also cut down by the Phoenicians, Turks and Romans."—The New Yorker.

AIRMAN'S COMPLIMENT

Lieutenant General Spaatz, now in charge of the Mediterranean air campaign, was standing on a London rooftop a year ago observing an air raid. The Nazis' aim was wild, the bombs fell helter-skelter. Spaatz began to fume and curse. "The damn fools," he roared. "They're setting air power back 20 years!"—Time.

MARRIED LIFE

"If I had my time over again," counseled a meretricious maiden lady of advanced years, "I'd get married before I had sense enough not to."—Townsend Weekly.

HER BEST FOOT FORWARD

A lady of our acquaintance, finding her self black leader (or captain) in the civilian defense lineup, set out one morning full of patriotic motives, to wise-up her neighbors in the matter of rationing and other OGD matters. She paused in due course at the front door of a family newly-arrived in the neighborhood.

Confronted by the lady of the house, she put on her best professional air, drew herself up to full dignity, and said impressively, "Good afternoon, I am the block head."—Quote.

GIRTH CONTROL CENTER

In Blacksburg, Va., a mountaineer woman had obtained ration book for her 12 children. "Now," instructed the registrar, "take these books over to the next table and the man there will stamp them and give you some literature," referring, of course, to information on the point system. "Oh," replied the woman, "I don't care for any literature, thank you. I like a large family."—Reader's Digest.

EGGS BY THE BAR

Frozen egg bars, moulded like conventional candy bars, may be a post-war commonplace in American kitchens. Developed at Michigan State college, the egg bars are made in joined segments which can be broken off and defrosted separately, permitting storage of the rest of the bar. Each piece represents an accurate measure; the housewife can remove one, two or more "eggs" as required.—Wall Street Journal.

GRIM POLISH HUMOR

The Polish people, such as are left of them at home, must have a little fun now and then or go crazy. When they can have it at the expense of the Germans it is like a gift of vitamins And because they have become insured to torture and are used to the presence of death it is not surprising that their humor is on the grim side.

Such a case recently happened in Krakow. It set all Poland to laughing and aroused the anger of their German masters. Some Polish underground members printed and promulgated what were supposed to be German posters which had all the earmarks of official authorization, including the signature of Herr Ohlenbusch, chief propagandist. Underground members posted the posters on walls in Krakow and also sent thousands of them to German officials throughout Poland with instructions that they be posted in public places. The Germans did as they were told, without examining the body of the proclamation.

In the proclamation and fury they later learned the posters advertised excursions to concentration camps in Poland. They began with a description of the camps and then stated that in the interest of propaganda excursions would be conducted—there were names of several of the worst ones. They promised that the excursions would be taken through the gas and steam chambers where mass executions take place, across the iron forests through which pass the high voltage electric current, and end the visit with trip to the crematorium where the authorities assert they can handle 3,000 bodies daily. The object of such excursion, according to this declaration, was to convince the people of "the colossal culture work of the Germans in Poland."—Wilmington (N. J.) News.

NEUTRAL CHEERS

In a movie theater in Oporto, Portugal, a newsreel showed German mechanized forces. The audience watched in stony silence. Then came a film of the British navy in action.

The audience stirred uneasily; Portuguese were expected to be neutral. Suddenly someone shouted: "Three cheers for the Oporto football club!" Cheers broke out and continued to the end of the film. Christian Science Monitor.

PROOF OF THE PUDDING

At the army's desert training center in California, Captain Francis E. Hogan made an inspection, finally commented: "The camouflage is only fair. Better work on it." Then he drove his car smack into the camouflage staff headquarters, crashed one wheel into a dugout room.—Time.

EASY TEST

The army assigned a group of eminent psychiatrists to determine the best way to select soldiers for duty on the various fighting fronts. After many tests the learned professors made their report. The best way to find out whether a soldier would be effective in the desert or in the north was to ask him: "What kind of weather do you like—hot or cold?"—Journal of the American Medical Association.

insidious compromise, miles of legislative red tape and the presence of theorists in policy making positions."

He pointed to the need of a "dramatic reorganization, a strong clear direction and a liberal infusion of common sense—these are the things that are needed." He viewed with genuine alarm "a strong clique in OPA who believe that government should manufacture and distribute all commodities." They are using the war, he charged, "to further their reform ideas and will continue to use honest men in OPA as a front for their efforts."

He attributed a large part of the trouble to the presence of an over abundance of "young lawyers and theorists" utterly lacking in business experience and said they would have to be forced out for they would stay until they were because few of them could earn anything like they are getting now in private life.

In a speech on the floor of the House not, long ago, Florida's congressman Bob Sikes made almost identical charges against the OPA, but being a mere congressman the agency felt it could laugh him off. But it won't find it so easy to squirm out from under the indictment of one who held an inside job of the magnitude of Maxon, who now second Bob's motion in no uncertain terms.

As much as we must regret this further disruption on the home front and its attendant pleasure to the Axis, it is comforting to see the whole ugly mess dragged out in the open where we can get at it—and now, unless our bureaucracy is entrenched to a point of impenetrability, we should witness a clearing that has been needed for months.

All right, Mr. Brown, it's your move—or maybe you "just work there" and really don't have anything to say about it.

CINEMATIC CHATTER....

—By MALCOLM MILLAR—
What The Movies Have To Offer During The Coming Week

For the last few weeks I have been giving a certain picture everything I could for a "build-up," because I felt that this show deserved more attention than anything we have screened in a long time. That show is "Hitler's Children," a picture that has received more favorable comment than anything Hollywood has turned out to date pertaining to Nazi methods and ambitions.

"Hitler's Children" will be screened at the Prince Theatre at the Saturday Owl show and Sunday-Monday and it is a story that every freedom loving man, woman and child should see. In the cast are Tim Holt, Bonita Granville, Kent Smith, Otto Kruger, H. B. Warner, Lloyd Corrigan, E. Ford Gage, Hans Conrid, Gavin Murr, Nancy Gates and many others who deserve special mention for a superb job of narration that will shock you greater than anything you have ever imagined.

"Hitler's Children" is based on "Education for Death," Gregor Ziemer's eye-witness account of Nazi educational methods and the way in which German boys and girls are being taught that their destiny is to enslave the rest of the world, the picture stirring tells a romantic story against the grim background of Hitler's rise to power.

Tim Holt and Bonita Granville play the two principals, a pair of German-American youngsters who take opposite paths through their school days but emerge during their army courtship as helpless cogs in the great pattern of Nazi machinery, unable to extricate themselves from its implacable purpose. Kent Smith, a new Broadway "find," is seen as an American teacher in Berlin in role similar to Ziemer's own career) who endeavors to aid the youngsters but who, too, is overcome by the machine.

You have a very interesting picture coming in for the Tuesday-Wednesday showing, "Captivity Wild Woman." This one stars John Carradine, whom you will remember as having seen in some of the finest characterizations on the screen. Evelyn Ankers, associated with many adventure films, Aquanetta, last seen in "Arabian Nights," John Milton, Lloyd Corrigan and Vince Barnett.

"Henry Aldrich Gets Glamour" comes in for the Thursday-Friday showing, bringing Jimmy Lyon as Henry with Charles Smith, John Lytle, Olive Blifensee, Diana Lynn, Francis Bifensee and Vaughn Lash, each of them faithful in their portrayals. Henry, the small town boy from Centerville, goes to Hollywood, with his big idea—but those ideas are mostly about love. Never understood in Centerville, by the home town folks, it didn't take the Hollywood gals long to get her to him and his love, and Henry had all of them "on their egg," so to speak, of interest only to lovers of ad-

JAX BEER, too

Every once in a while when you ask for JAX Beer, your dealer may tell you that he's out of JAX for the moment. This is because of three things:

1. Government Priority orders for JAX that must be filled promptly.
2. Wartime limitation on the quantity of raw materials available.
3. The immense and growing popularity of JAX, the Drink of Friendship.

Thus occasional shortages of JAX, cannot be avoided:

Nevertheless your dealer will have JAX most of the time. Don't ever assume that he's out until he tells you so. And if he is out of JAX today, he's pretty certain to have it tomorrow.

So keep on asking for golden, mellow JAX. And remember, JAX is always tops in quality . . . you simply can't buy better beer at any price.

TO OUR DEALERS

We never forget for a moment that you are our oldest friends and we want nothing to interfere with our friendship. Be assured that we are making every effort to maintain your normal supplies at all times. On those occasions when we can't, we know that you understand that certain government priority orders must be filled first.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

by Russell Kay

I don't know whether Mr. Lou R. Maxon, deputy administrator of the OPA, thought he was telling us anything we didn't know when he issued his timely blast at this "Frankenstein bureau or not, but most any guy on the street from the corner bookshop to the banker has known in his heart for the whole screw setup was nothing short of a grand and glorious mess.

Admitting the need for some regulatory body to curb inflation and granting that Congress was sincere in its effort to create one, it is nevertheless apparent today that if there was any attempt to create a dual failure.

The agency got off on the wrong foot at the start under Leon Henderson, who attempted to set up a sort of cross between a Gettysburg and Kinkor Court. Then the lawyers' 2000 of them, moved in along with a flock of screwball theorists and college professors who, pooled their incompetence, inexperience and crackpot dreams to fabricate the bureaucratic nightmare designed to blitz a free people into a nation of cringing, fawning cravens.

From the dawn of history it has been recorded that only SLAVES can be driven, while FREE MEN must be led. Public indignation demanded the removal of Henderson, but merely removing the driver didn't stop the machine. With the appointment of Brown it was fervently hoped that his first act would be to direct a complete and comprehensive overhaul to the rebuilding of a machine that would work—but the situation seemed to get worse instead of better.

Now the agency lid has been blown off in the form of a sensational indictment from within by an official thoroughly familiar with every detail of its operations and fully qualified to speak with unquestioned authority. As Director of Information for OPA, Mr. Maxon, in one clearcut, straightforward, fearless, statement has verified what most of us have long realized but could not prove. America is indebted to Lou R. Maxon, and it is regrettable that his courageous statement had to be accompanied with his letter of resignation.

In terminating his association with the OPA and refusing to accept the offered post of manager, Maxon bluntly tells why. He charges that the agency has become "so bound up in legalistic that it is impossible to get it out of its ruts." He states that "it is not because of its own internal weakness, confusion,

Reptile Institute Is A Busy Place

SILVER SPRINGS, July 22.—(FNS)—Up until a few weeks ago, Ross Allen's only competitor of consequence was Herpetologist George L. Dowling of San Gabriel, Calif. Then the Army came along and took George and as a result, Ross Allen, already over-burdened with letters from people all over the world offering snakes for sale has had his correspondence doubled.

It seems that out in San Gabriel, Dowling's father, swamped with snake letters had heard of Florida's Ross Allen so he bundled them all up and forwarded them to Ross.

Allen, in addition to operating his famed Reptile Institute at Silver Springs, supplies large quantities of snake venom to drug houses for use in the manufacture of anti-venom.

He explains that most offer snakes that have no value and states that only the Diamond Back Rattler and Moccasin, along with one or two other varieties are desired.

K. M. Marmon, federal Indian Agent for Florida, announced last week that negotiations had been completed for the employment of a group of Seminole Indians, at regular wages, by the United States Sugar Corporation to help relieve the labor shortage. Twenty men and eight women were in the first group assigned to this work and they will be engaged in planting, weeding and chopping cane.

Farm Loans Are Still Available

LAKE WALES, July 22.—(FNS)—John D. Clark, president of the Florida Farm Bureau Federation and Secy-Treas. of the National Farm Loan Association stated this week that farm loans are still available and that loans are being handled through properly accredited Farm Loan associations just as they are through the Federal Land Bank of Columbia.

The act authorizing the making of these loans for an additional two year period has been signed by the president and loans are made on the security of first and second mortgages on farms. John Clark points out enable the farmer to consolidate his indebtedness at lower rates of interest and aid him in getting out of debt.

With the view of protecting newspapers and the "Freedom of the Press", Congressman Maas proposes a bill that would require the WPB to submit to Congress detailed reports on every newspaper allotment case it handles. The WPB howls that to do so would take half of its time making reports and furnishing information. "If that is the case," remarks the Sanford Herald, "Congress has stumbled on an effective means for ham-stringing government agencies that have been so busily engaged in ham-stringing business-tie them up with red tape."

A FEW Standard Oil Service Stations are "boarded up." Pumps are empty, drives vacant... the boys have gone to war.

Wherever such a scene of inaction may have replaced the busy corner of a short time ago, accept it as evidence that many men of this Company have changed their uniforms for a while.

Not far away you will find another Standard Oil Station—open, busy, trustworthy—worth going an extra distance to find. If not all Stations in your locality can overcome the "man-power" question, please understand that we strive to keep standards high—too high to permit indifferent operation.

Soon, we hope, conditions will favor and make possible old-time operation. Until then let the Station that is "closed for a while" be a signal to you that Standard Oil men are in the thick of the fight.

Were You the cause of This?

FOR months he had looked forward to a furlough... seeing mother, dad, sis and the hometown once again. It might be his last chance before going overseas.

Finally when the big day arrived, there was no space available aboard the train he wanted to take. "Sorry," the girl at the ticket office said, "all sold out."

So he had to wait for another train while the clock ticked away precious hours of a furlough that would be all too short. Time way, he thought, to treat a fellow who is risking all for his country.

Perhaps there were many aboard that train whose travel was far less urgent than his. Or, there may have been an empty seat or berth which someone had reserved and neglected to cancel.

The fact that we failed to accommodate that boy and our ability to accommodate thousands of others on furlough may depend upon you. Help make room for them by traveling only when definitely necessary, by avoiding weekend trips, and by cancelling reservations promptly should your plans change.

They will appreciate it. So will we.
